Caleb: So the black guy/former trucker who runs the audio board was sitting the lobby playing some highly complex looking strategy game on his PS2.
me: right right
Caleb: I can now say that I've seen a man wearing a wave cap in TV station lobby playing a highly complex strategy game on his PS2.
me: well, I can say that I've been denounced for not being hard enough on Barack Obama by a black Ron Paul advocate who quotes menacing pro-gun quotes from Thomas Jefferson on her Facebook page.
me: this being, of course, Mel's sister Caleb: You may have won this round, sir.
Caleb: You may well have won this round.
me: seriously
me: "Hmmm, no criticism of Obama on your Enlighten the Vote page? Hmmmm.
me: "
me: remember
me: this is Mel's sister me: I no longer believe in genetics Caleb: Yeah, I had Thanksgiving dinner with her.
Caleb: And her white, Libertarian husband.
Caleb: We had goat.
me: damnit, I never met her me: I would have touched her hair and said "Wow your hair is so neat!"
me: they like that
